

No Christian broadcaster should ever have to compromise on matters of conscience. The FCC should not consider complaints and allegations over content. It is not the Fcc's business what Christians broadcast, just like it's not your business what missionaries say on the field. Christian radio is a missions effort. That's why I DONATE!

You are practicing illegal harassment. Your proposed rules violate the First Amendment, and you know it!

Christian broadcasters need not cater to those who disagree with them. Christians never owe airtime to opponents. Afterall, the government has not even given Creationists equal time in public schools, but THAT would be FAIR since tax payers who support schools are mostly creationists!

If atheists want their voices heard, let them do it on their own stations in their own private schools. Can you imagine who would bother to go to a university if it openly declared it was atheistic? A private atheistic college would not survive probably.

It is Christians who fund Christian schools and public schools and we deserve to be heard. Atheists do not fund Christian radio and they are not owed a voice there.

Renewal granting power should remain in the hands of qualified, Christian-sympathetic civil servants.

The FCC commissioners are the reason why I never bought a TV. Finally someone bought me one, but it's never been plugged into a working antenna and it's not even plugged into the wall (except for a single half-hour of an exercise video a year ago, then I gave away the video.) And I used to do screenwriting. I was an award winning screenwriter (university level award.) But who even wants a TV thanks to the FCC? Cable companies charge for non-Christian stations even when you don't want to support them, so I say, "Forget you, Cable!"

Quit trying to force speech on people! How Communist!!!

Please renew Christian licenses quickly, keeping their cost low.

Please stop attacking unstaffed operations too. Forced relocations are also preposterous.

As for multiplying electricity expenses, don't you guys even care about the environment?

Truly, Miss Mytyl Wilson
